A NEMESIS ON HIS TRACK.

A dispatch from Salt Lake says that Arthur Brown, formerly a United States Senator, and his wife, Mrs. Ida Cameron Brown, have joined hands for offensive and defensive operations against Mrs. Annie Bradley, a pretty widow, who declares she will drag Brown to the penitentiary with her. Senator Brown and Mrs. Bradley were arrested several months ago on warrants charging criminal relations, which were sworn to by Mrs. Brown, who adopted this means of ending an intrigue which had been carried on for several years, a result of which was the birth of two children.

Recently Senator Brown and his wife became reconciled soon after Brown had filed suit for divorce. One of the conditions of the reconciliation was that Senator Brown should discard Mrs. Bradley. The moment Mrs. Bradley was told that Brown had cast her off she hastened into court and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of criminal relations. Then she declined to compromise with the Senator on a financial basis. She announced that Brown must divorce his wife and marry her for the sake of their children. This Brown refused to do, and in an interview he ordered his wife to throw Mrs. Bradley out of his office. The Senator's wife attempted to lasso her rival. Mrs. Bradley came out victor, and was left in possession of the field. As Mrs. Bradley had pleaded guilty to the joint charge pending against herself and the Senator, and declared that when Brown was put on trial she would go on the witness stand and make a full confession, in the opinion of the legal fraternity Brown saw the penitentiary staring him in the face.

He made a desperate fight to have his case dismissed on technicalities, but Mrs. Bradley checked him at every turn, and now Brown has been ordered to trial. Mrs. Brown's position is a nerve-racking one. It was she who preferred the charge upon which the Senator must stand trial. Now that she has broken up his intrigue with Mrs. Bradley she finds herself powerless to stop the prosecution, the key to which is held by her old rival. Mrs. Bradley is a remarkably shrewd woman. She is out for revenge, and is playing the trump card she holds, with rare skill and intelligence. If she carries out her threat and repeats at the Brown trial the confession which she made when she was arraigned it will go hard with Brown.

"I am not in this fight to obtain money," she said, "but to compel Senator Brown to legitimize our two children. The last of these two was born just before I entered the plea of guilty to the joint charges which Mrs. Brown filed against the Senator and myself. It is shameful that any man, no matter how rich and powerful he may be, can ruin a woman, and then, as the whim strikes him, desert not only her, but the children of their sin. I have already paid a heavy penalty for my offense against society, and now I owe reparation to my children. All that I may do now would be for the good of my two little boys."

Mrs. Brown is a society woman and wealthy in her own name. She was the beautiful Miss Ida Cameron, of Kalamazoo, Mich. Just before the Senator's intrigue with Mrs. Bradley became public property it was announced that Mrs. Brown was to be presented at court in London, but since then she has lived in retirement.

Mrs. Bradley is a young grass widow of good family, a handsome brunette, of fine education and attractive personality. As Brown's trial is set for next week, the greatest interest is manifested in the outcome of the case.

Senator Brown is 62 years old and Mrs. Bradley is 27. It is estimated that Brown's liaison with Mrs. Bradley has cost him $50,000.

MIRACLE OF A RUSSIAN PRIEST.—Father John of Cronstadt is credited in St. Petersburg with an alleged miracle. A St. Petersburg workman related to him a sad story of domestic woe. His wife was bedridden, his elder son a confirmed drunkard, his only daughter's whereabouts were unknown, and the younger son was losing his sight through disease. Father John said he would intercede for the relief of the workman by prayer, and told him he might expect a result on Christmas eve. On that evening the workman's wife arose, dressed and went about her household, which she had not done for years. Later the elder son entered the house, his eyes filled with tears of penitence and declaring that he had reformed. Then the younger son arrived stating that an oculist had told him his eyes were cured. To complete the parents' joy the daughter returned, explaining her absence satisfactorily. The next day the workman received a letter from Father John saying he had reason to believe that the prayers had been heard and asking for confirmation.
